All international games count towards the standings. The Dutch, German and French games count towards the standing if the GM communicates that with the board of organizers at least two days before the game. The games are played via Discord. The games finish after a unanimous draw (secret voting via GM), at a solo victory or after the year 1907 has been played. The games are scored via the C-Diplo Namur scoring system:

https://world-diplomacy-wiki.fandom.com/wiki/C-Diplo_Namur_Scoring_System A player's total score is calculated by the following formula: sum of scores / (number of games + 3) After the game day in November, the seven highest ranked players will play for the league championship on a top board (country selection via the Paris method). Ties will be broken in the following order: Numbers of games a player sat out because there were more players present than spots on boards available (the more the better) The highest score in an individual game (the higher the better) Numbers of games played (the more the better) Randomized decision To qualify for the top board, a player needs to have played at least two games. The final results will count towards the qualification standings of the Diplomacy Broadcast Invitational (<https://diplombn.com/invitational/>). For all games, the vWDC-code-of-conduct applies: <https://discord.com/channels/768076008955707392/861627607191126096> A violation of it can lead to being banned from further participation in the league.
